Driver's license bureau to move to Shoreline Park

BY MARY G. SEILEY

The local driver's license office is moving, again.

Hancock County officials have agreed to a request to let the state Highway Patrol use Shoreline Park Community Center for an office, shifting the site from the old Bay St. Louis City Hall.

Highway Patrol officials confirmed the site shift to the community center on the Kiln-Waveland Cutoff Road near Highway 603. They had, however, no details on when the move would occur.

Chancery Court Clerk Michael Necaise told the board of supervisors recently that the Highway Patrol wants to use the center between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Tuesdays. He also said they may expand serve to twice weekly. Supervisors agreed to the request.

The action comes in the wake of recent public complaints by a Bay St. Louis alderman, Thomas Farve, about long lines and inefficient service in the City Hall site.

Farve, whose license recently was stolen, told fellow councilmen about the troubles he had in getting a replacement license in Bay St. Louis, and asked that council write the state to request improved service.

He said he had similar problems later, when he went to Gulfport for his license replacement. He's now waiting for a duplicate license in the mail.

Meanwhile, city officials said last week the letter they'd agreed to write had not been written, and Mayor Eddie Favre was unaware of the pending move.

The driver's license operation had been housed at the library on Highway 90, until officials wanted to offer twice weekly service. Because the library space was in demand, officials there said they couldn't accommodate the twice weekly operation. The city, however, offered space in

Recycling of trees offered to residents

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's annual Christmas tree recycling collection will be held the week of January 3-8.

Cindy Vernon, chamber executive director, said, "Residents are asked to take their tree to the north end of the Hancock County Civic Center parking lot, Longfellow Road, the week of January 3-8."

Those turning in trees for recycling are asked to remove all lights, ornaments and tinsel.

There will be a roped area in the parking lot for residents to place the trees.

If they wish, tree recyclers may stop at the chamber office, 412 Highway 90, Suite #6 to get a seedling, compliments of Mississippi Power Company.

The mulch from the recycled trees will be used throughout Hancock County for various beautification projects in 1994.

"In addition to the use of mulch, the recycling of trees will save many cubic yards of valuable landfill space," Vernon stated.

Sponsors for the chamber's sponsored project include; Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Chamber Beautification Committee, Mississippi Power Company, BFI Services Group, The Sea Coast Echo, Asplundh Tree Expert Company and The Sun Herald.

Tag checks

Law enforcement plans crackdown on out-of-state licenses

BY AMY PICKICH

Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre said it's time to crack down again on residents with out-of-state tags.

The action came after a request at Tuesday's city council meeting. One resident said he has noticed a large number of people living and working in the city with out-of-state tags on their vehicles. He added that most of them have been doing so for awhile.

Favre said the police do check tags, but it is time to put more effort into the situation, especially with the influx of residents and casino employees.

Specifically, the mayor said he would notify the Bay St. Louis Police Department to beef up checks. In addition he will put a reminder on utility bills.

Bay St. Louis Police Chief Frank McNeil said officers are "working on it steadily." After the first of the year, he said Bay P.D. will coordinate efforts with state police.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said the county will also set up road block again after the first of the year. He said officers have written "numerous tickets" in recent months for out-of-state tags, but with the holidays have been focusing more on safety.

Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell said Waveland travelers can also expect periodic road checks for out-of-state tags. He said they will also continue their regular enforcement by officers on the road.

According to McNeil, once a person becomes a resident of the state-lives in the area for 30 days, they are required to obtain a Mississippi license plate.

In addition, he said, the person has 60 days to obtain a Mississippi driver's license.

Peterson said the only two exceptions are those in active military and full-time students.

Supervisors honor Beebe

BY AMY PICKICH

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors honored Walter "Pete" Beebe Tuesday for almost 6 years of service as a Hancock County Port and Harbor commissioner.

Board president Mike Ladner presented Beebe, who resigned in November, with a certificate of appreciation for his "outstanding service" to the county.

The low bid of $259,619 from T.L. Wallace in Columbia, Miss., was accepted, subject to the engineer's approval of the bid's validity for a bridge replacement at Kiln-Picayune Road. The board also authorized Ladner to sign the bid once it had been checked.

Said county engineer Larry Seal when asked about the status of Hancock County bridges, "I would say that bridgewise, we are better off than any other county in the state."

Council ok's Casino Magic site plans

BY AMY PICKICH

After months of discussion, the Bay St. Louis City Council approved Casino Magic's general site plan with special exceptions as recommended by planning and zoning and the city's site plan review and supplemental standards.

Casino Magic's site plans include the construction of a hotel, golf course, clubhouse and additional parking. The special exceptions included actions on a parking lot and the clubhouse to be considered separately.

The construction of additional parking in an area bordered by Felicity Street, Engman Avenue and Casino Magic Drive, which are zoned residential, will be allowed. Once constructed, more than 3,000 parking spots will be available at the casino.

Planning and zoning chairman Les Fillingame said the site plan review and supplemental standards that were also approved, defines a more specific, detailed code for the city to go by compared to the pre-annexation agreement.

The council declared an emergency situation, making the new code effective immediately, to ensure the health, safety and welfare of Bay St. Louis citizens.

Other recommendations by planning and zoning include a special exception for a bed and breakfast to be located at 217 Union Ave. and the denial of a variance for a neon sign requested by Dominos.

ALTERNATE ROUTE FOR CASINO TRAFFIC

The council took no action on a proposal by Ames Kergosien that the city look into constructing a road from Highway 603 to the intersection of Blue Meadow Road and Casino Magic Drive to alleviate the "high traffic situation" on Blue Meadow Road and Highway 90.

Councilman Charles Scianna said the city will soon enter a contract with Gulf Regional Planning, who will look into options to alleviate city traffic problems.

The proposed east-west road would be built through mostly undeveloped area of city and county land and would cross Longfellow Road, Washington Road, Paradise Lane and Blue Meadow Road to meet with Casino Magic Drive.

Kergosien requested the council make this proposal of the "highest priority," as the traffic situation will only get worse, he said.

OPEN CONTAINER

Council attorney Don Rafferty said he is looking into the wording of the city's new open container law to allow special exceptions for piers, the seawall and beach.

A number of residents have aired concerns about the recreational restrictions of the ordinance, passed Dec. 7 and effective 30 days after.

It prohibits possessing, consuming or transporting alcoholic beverages in open containers in public areas, including the beach. The council said permits could be issued for organized activities, such as festivals and ball games.

The council approved 3-1, a proposal by CSX Railroad to close four crossings in Bay St. Louis. Mayor Eddie Favre said the Mississippi Dept. of Transportation has the final say in the matter. The council's approval may only help in CSX's request.

Councilman James Rutherford was absent during the vote. Councilman Tad Black said he voted against it because there is no alternate plan for traffic.

The board discussed installing two comfort stations, one downtown behind City Hall, the other at Washington Ave. and Highway 90.

JOBY NECAISE

May 18, 1973

Feb. 1, 1990

The holidays are here, bringing memories of childhood cheer.

Lay to rest in peace, dear Joby. The years have slowly passed away.

You are gone, but still live in the hearts of those who stay.

The memories are the sweetest thoughts we know.

They fill the holiday with brightness that make our pathway glow.

This is a special time, a family time of year.

So naturally all thoughts turn to you, dear Joby, a very special son. Joby, you are loved and remembered the whole year through.

Remembering and sadly missed Love, your Family Christmas 1993

Are you fighting crime?

Angeles attempted to get a foothold in Denver. They were stunned to meet with stiff resistance and swift defeat from the united resident Chinese.

The Denver Chinese did nothing more than any American community of any ethnic or racial extraction can do if it has the will and cohesion. The only catch is, the will and cohesion can come only from individuals committed to values.

Thus, the most pointed question is not whether you are fighting crime, but whether you are committed to values in such a way that you have the will to fight crime in unison with the whole community where you live.

It keeps coming back to personal considerations which must be confronted in every citizen of each family and community. Do you abet crime by conniving at the external supports of crime, such as fencing hot goods?

You will be among the first to admit that crime cannot survive without adequate opportunities in the black market. Yet, I recall numerous conversations with allegedly moral, God-fearing people who wanted me to buy hot merchandise.

For some, it was even a triumph of sorts that they were able to procure "cheap" items, albeit from shady dealers. This is the old one-step morality which believes that all stolen property is clean if stolen by someone else.

So goods are laundered by fencing just as money is laundered by clean investment. Apparently, that is why a friend of mine offered to get me a good rod and reel for $5. You cannot fight crime while compromising your principles.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

The celebrated, or notorious, deficient, war against crime is maligned by virtually everyone within and without the pale of politics and law enforcement. Deservedly so. It is simply not working, and in most cases nonexistent.

Almost as a last gasp, the NAACP has finally jumped into the fray, breathing fire and vowing to get to the bottom of things. More than likely, they will come up with the same findings and conclusions as all blue-ribbon committees have.

Law enforcement, they will say, needs to be beefed up and more visible. Truancy must be controlled by the schools, families and communities. Real education must take the place of the wanton lack of discipline and a learning atmosphere.

Most of all, values must be taught in school, but even more so at home, carrying over into church. The bottom line, then, is that our decaying, sometimes moribund families need CPR in the worst way. They are the main root of our evils.

So, the NAACP will recommend government-subsidized programs to resuscitate our families and, through them, our schools. Chances are, however, that one critical ingredient will be overlooked as it generally is.

What about the so-called upstanding citizens who are not criminals, who do not cotton to criminals, and who constantly preach values much if not most of the time? Are they actively engaged in the war against crime? Are they fighting crime?

Are you fighting crime? Inevitably, this whole discussion boils down to what no blue-ribbon committee needs to waste time looking for: you and I as individuals pursuing values and combining with the entire community in such pursuit.

In the midst of this very discussion recently, a friend told me how Chinese gangs from Los Myrt Haas 'tickles the twines' as members of the Hancock County Exchange Club sing along at the club's Christmas luncheon.

KILN WATER & FIRE

The board approved the reappointment of Kiln Water and Fire Protection District board chairman Cleveland Wyatt, whose term had expired, for five more years, beginning Dec. 22, 1993.

In other matters concerning the district, board members questioned the district's grant application options, following a public hearing on the matter last Tuesday.

The district seeks some $1 million in grant monies to provide sewerage services initially to 400-500 residents. The district would finance the amount to match the grant.

The board approved the district's request in October to apply for Farmers Home Administration loans to provide sewerage for Kiln.

The board asked that they coordinate plans with the wastewater district and with Gulf Regional Planning so both the county and the Kiln will not compete for the same grants.

They later resolved to require the Kiln Water and Fire District to hold a public hearing and give written notice to residents prior to any sewerage plans in the district, as the project to provide sewerage to some 800 homes may put the area in debt.

District 1 supervisor Robert Peterson asked how the district could get a $1 million grant discussed at the hearing, when the county cannot get a similar grant.

District 4 supervisor Wilmer Seymour said the district's plans were preliminary. He added they were looking at every option available.

Said District 2 supervisor Dolph Keller, "If it's a grant that this board can get, they aren't supposed to compete. They said they would not compete with the board of supervisors."

"I'm not against them getting grants, but at the same time I don't think they should be competing with this board."

PARKING

The board discussed ongoing parking problems at the courthouse.

Peterson said the courthouse committee is looking into solutions, but with the holidays he did not expect a recommendation anytime soon.

He added if the committee does recommend relocating courthouse, the need for spaces will still be there while the new courthouse is being built.

The board agreed to look into options to solve existing parking problems while the committee is looking into long-range planning.

Seymour said, "With all the people coming into the county all the parking spots we can get are needed."

MOBILE MEDIC

The board approved the release of Hancock County Mobile Medic funds to move 911 equipment from one location to another in Harrison County.

Mobile Medic president Steve Delahousey said $46,000 was in account, but he needed the authorization from the board to use some $2,000-3,000 to move to the new facility.

He said even though facilities are in Harrison County, calls are routed there from Hancock County. He added that the upgraded service would provide enhanced capabilities for Hancock County.

Ladner said the board appreciated the Mobile Medic's improved services to the county.

Peterson updated the board on the installation of caution lights near the school on Lakeshore Road. He said the equipment had been ordered and should be installed soon.

In other matters, the board approved:

—the payment of $700 for repairs to a car at the Sheriff's department;

—the tax rolls as presented by the Mississippi State Tax Commission;

—a religious tax exemption for a home for retired ministers in Waveland, as recommended by tax assessor Eddie Murtagh;

—personnel changes as recommended by district attorney Cono Carana, included the resignation of Stacey Necaise as assistant victim witness coordinator and the appointment of Kim DeFlanders to fill the vacant position;

—the employment of Bryan Butler, contingent upon a physical;

—and the ratification of leases from the Hancock County School Board, contingent to a check by board attorney Gerald Gex, who was absent Tuesday.

The board recessed until Dec. 28. The board has scheduled a pre-bid conference pertaining to the sand beach renewal project for the January 10 workshop.

SCB grant funds science fair instruction at HHS

Hancock High School has received a grant from South Central Bell, the school's corporate partner in the Adopt-A-School program.

With grant money received, Hancock students will have better instruction to prepare for the school's science fair.

A training workshop will be held to give parents tools they need to assist their children with science projects. The school will also better equip students to complete their projects by pairing them with outside consultants to instruct and demonstrate various scientific methods.

In addition, a special training session will be set up for the teachers to enable them to serve as the science fair coordinators and judges.

South Central Bell's community relations team is involved with many projects to promote academic excellence, attendance and other activities to help the school.

"We are pleased this grant will be used to enhance academics at Hancock High School," said Tim Ryan of South Central Bell. "The business community realizes that we all can be partners to help prepare today's students for tomorrow's work force, and we hope that this project will benefit many students."

Port and Harbor job to be filled soon

BY AMY PICKICH

Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission president Dave McDonald said Tuesday a decision is expected soon as to who will fill the shoes of executive director.

"We would like to reach some kind of conclusion within the next two weeks," McDonald said.

He said the holidays have slowed the decision, but the process is still moving along.

According to McDonald, the commission received some 67 applications for the position. From these, seven candidates were chosen for interviews.

"At the present time we have not reached a final agreement with any of those seven," he said.

He added that of the finalists, he is sure the person chosen "will be someone everyone will be happy with and will definitely be a help to the county."

McDonald, with the help of the commission, has been running the day-to-day operations of the port and harbor commission since the Oct. 22 resignation of Harold "Buz" Olsen, who held the position of executive director since 1987.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Mrs. Ina Piazza was 'Citizen of Century'

There comes a time in life when we bid farewell to someone we feel already has a place prepared for them in the hereafter.

On Tuesday, Bay St. Louis resident Mrs. Ina Piazza will be laid to rest.

In a lifetime, we may know of one or two such people. Few others have contributed more to her fellow man.

In this century, there is not anyone in Hancock County I have known, who has done more for her fellow man in time of need. She dedicated her life to helping those in need.

Just to mention a few of the ways she was a helper of others:

—Mrs. Piazza's help was to those passing through our community — with the Hancock County Emergency Relief;

—On duty as a shelter manager during the time of a nature's disturbance — with the American Red Cross and Civil Defense;

—A receptionist at a disaster assistance center — for days on end;

—A baby sick, or someone in need of clothing — she offered help from the Bay St. Louis or Waveland St. Vincent de Paul Society;

—A hungry family — she helped form and operate the Hancock County Food Pantry;

—Someone cold — she helped in assistance through the Warm Neighbor program;

—A person needing medicine — she pooled the resources of the various agencies to obtain it;

—Someone sick in the hospital — as a Pink Lady she helped the sick and assisted families;

—Veterans Administration Hospital, Gulfport — writing or reading a letter for patients, she was on hand for 35 years;

—Someone needing rental assistance — as a member of Hancock County Federal Emergency Management, she was always there;

—Thanksgiving or Christmas baskets — she was the area coordinator to make sure there were no duplications and that everyone in need received;

—Salvation Army assistance — she was the local coordinator;

—Church altar preparation — Mrs. Piazza did this for most of her life;

—Hospital administration — a five-year member of the Hancock General Hospital trustees;

—Community Service and Planning — she was a charter and active member;

—Need of blood — she was a regular helping with local blood drives;

—Elderly people — as a RSVP volunteer and advisory member, Mrs. Piazza was always there;

—Voting process — Mrs. Piazza worked at the election polls for over 40 years and served on the Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee;

—Housing — she served for many years on the Bay St. Louis Housing Authority;

—Welfare Department — a board member for many years;

—A community need — Mrs. Piazza was among the founders of the United Way of Hancock County.

Mrs. Piazza dedicated her life to her fellow man and helped someone even the day before she left this earth to be with her Master.

To her family and many friends, it was a great honor to have known such a 'Great Lady.'

She was honored as a 1985 Citizen of the Year by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. In my eyes, Mrs. Piazza was the 'Citizen of Century.'

Kudzu government

Despite public proclamations by state and local officials the growth of government is being restricted, the latest numbers show that government payrolls continue to exhibit features of the fabled kudzu vine in its ability to withstand pruning.

The "Mississippi Labor Market" publication of the Mississippi Employment Security Commission tracks monthly changes in the state's nonagricultural labor force.

For October, each Mississippi government category surveyed by the Commission (state government, state education, local government, local education) had an increase in employees in October 1993 compared to October 1992. The greatest percentage increase was a 7.1 percent rise in the state education category. The October figures were released in late November.

The Commission reported that an estimated 192,300 people were full- or part-time wage or salaried employees of state and local government in October 1993 — an increase of 4,700 from the same month in 1992.

That is a 2.5 percent increase, more than the 1.8 percent growth in the civilian labor force, according to the Commission.

Mississippi taxpayers should continue to ask if increased government payrolls have improved or expanded government services, or if the continued growth of government — much like the kudzu vine — simply adds pressure to increase government revenue.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Hopes of D.C. statehood dashed for good reason, says Taylor

On Nov. 21, 1993, the U.S. House of Representatives soundly defeated a bill that would have granted statehood to the District of Columbia, overhauled its government and given the new state two senators and one representative.

Of all the District statehood bills introduced in the last few decades, the debate marked the first time that lawmakers debated the issue on the House floor. While many of the District's vocal supporters called the 153-277 loss a "great victory," I must disagree. If anything, the overwhelming defeat sounded the death knell for the statehood movement.

Despite the rhetoric that surrounded the statehood vote, there were genuine flaws with the bill which supporters simply overlooked. The First Congress chose the current site on the Potomac River at the request of President George Washington, taking sections from Virginia and Maryland to comprise the federal district.

A majority of my colleagues and I believe President Washington and our nation's founding fathers initiated the federal district plan to protect the new capital from the entanglement of local political disputes.

Additionally, if proponents were granted their wish, the boundaries of the new state would absorb a number of federal and congressional buildings. The Executive Office Building, five Cabinet-level departments and the FBI building, just to name a few, would belong to the new state.

Long-time bill opponent U.S. Rep. Thomas Bliley of Virginia argued the only way the district could possibly become a state is if Congress approves by a two-thirds majority in both chambers a constitutional amendment that must be ratified by 37 states. The Constitutional Convention in 1787 determined that a federal district "10 miles square" be given a unique status.

"All Americans should have the right to choose whether they want to give 95 percent of their capital away," Bliley said.

I don't believe Americans want to give their capital away at this time. Furthermore, I can say with absolute certainty that I don't believe there are many South Mississippians who support the proposal. During the debate, not one South Mississippian ever contacted me to ask for my support.

I realize that in early 1994 proponents intend to ask members of Congress to reconsider the issue. In my view a rare opportunity was given D.C. statehood supporters in November. And the 1994 Congressional schedule should be dedicated to dealing with more pressing matters.

MUNICIPALITIES

Q. Must the municipal board authorize in advance its members to travel to events such as the Mississippi Municipal Convention?

A. Yes. (§25-3-41)

Q. May board members receive travel advances for official travel?

A. Yes, subject to the State Auditor's guidelines mailed to all municipalities on July 17, 1990.

Q. What are the daily meal and personal vehicle mileage limits for travel to the Mississippi Coast?

Q. May a municipality pay a board member's spouse's expenses to the Mississippi Municipal Convention?

A. No. That would be a donation prohibited by Section 66, Mississippi Constitution and Section 21-17-5, Mississippi Code of 1972, annotated.

Q. May a new board revise the budget?

A. Yes; however, it is limited to one revision during the period July through September, and the revision must be made no later than the August regular meeting. (§21-35-25)

Q. Is a municipal levying authority responsible for determining if its supported school district has exceeded the ad valorem tax increase limitation?

A. No, the school board must track collections and escrow excesses. (§37-57-107)

Q. When must collections in excess of the ad valorem tax increase limitation be placed in escrow?

A. Excess collections should be placed into the escrow fund when received from the tax collector. (§27-39-323)

GENERAL

Q. May local governments lease-purchase equipment costing less than $10,000?

A. Yes. The $10,000 restriction on lease-purchases applies only to agencies. (§31-7-13)

Q. Has legislation been enacted redefining the term "emergency" under the public purchasing laws?

A. Yes. (House Bill 1218, Regular Session 1993, effective July 1, 1993)

A safety belt can make the difference

By Donald O'Call, Executive Director
Department of Public Safety
Division of Public Safety Planning

"The driver, who was not wearing a seat belt, died instantly after being thrown through the windshield. A man was killed and his wife and daughter seriously injured in a two-car accident. None of the victims was wearing a safety belt."

"The driver, who was wearing a safety belt, survived the crash. Two passengers, who were not wearing safety belts, were thrown from the vehicle and died at the scene."

Week after week, we see and hear these reports from the news media.

As a former state trooper and assistant chief of the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, I can vouch for the fact that wearing safety belts or having children in child protection devices often can be the difference between walking away or being carried away from a motor vehicle crash.

Again and again, I saw those who had been buckled up escape with either no injuries or only minor scrapes and bruises.

Knowing the overwhelming benefits of buckling up, I often ask the question, why doesn't everybody in a vehicle use safety belts or child protection devices?

I imagine some of the reasons relate to human nature, thinking that serious motor vehicle crashes only happen to other people. Yet, even the most careful drivers sometimes are involved in crashes.

Having vehicles torn apart in such crashes certainly is not pleasant, but being killed, paralyzed for life or sustaining other permanent injuries doesn't have to happen.

Public Safety Planning studies indicated that from 280 to 385 of those killed in 1992 Mississippi motor vehicle crashes would have lived if they had been wearing safety belts or using child protection devices.

Let's take a look at a few of the possible reasons some motorists are not using safety belts.

They might believe that it's foolish to buckle up if they're driving just a short distance from home or driving at less than 40 miles per hour.

The facts are that 75 percent of fatal crashes occur within 25 miles of home and that more than 80 percent of all motor vehicle crashes occur at speeds of less than 40 miles per hour.

Others might think that it's better to be thrown clear in a crash. Actually, your chances of being killed are much greater if you're thrown from the vehicle.

To clear the vehicle, you might crash through the windshield, fly through a doorway into a roadside object or be scraped along the pavement. Then, your vehicle could roll on top of you or another vehicle drive over you.

If you're not thrown clear, you're much more likely to be conscious after the crash and able to free yourself and help your passengers.

Some motorists might believe that safety belts would contribute to their being trapped in a burning or submerged vehicle.

Study after study, however, has indicated that, if fire or submersion occurs, wearing a safety belt actually could save your life. If you're not wearing a safety belt in a crash involving fire or submersion, you might be knocked unconscious by striking the interior of your vehicle. Obviously, unconscious persons don't climb out of burning vehicles or swim away from those that are submerged.

Mississippi law requires motor vehicle drivers and front-seat passengers to wear safety belts and children under age 2 to be buckled into child protection devices.

There's a fine of $25 for violation of the child protection device law, but I'm concerned that many adult motorists are not taking advantage of the protection safety belts afford because there's currently no penalty for adults not buckling up.

Again, human nature comes into the picture. Many motorists have told us that, if there were a penalty for not wearing safety belts, they would wear them. Human nature is such that we sometimes need penalties to protect us from our own mistakes.

Fines for speeding, reckless driving and other dangerous actions are imposed to serve as deterrents, reasons not to jeopardize our lives or the lives of others on our highways.

A deterrent, helping us to avoid the worst penalties of all-being killed or disabled for life.

Imagine a motorist visiting a friend who became paralyzed while not wearing his safety belt in a motor vehicle crash, a friend who never again would walk or drive.

The visitor suddenly remembers that he wore his safety belt...just because he didn't want to pay a fine for not being buckled up. Then, it dawned on him that the safety belt penalty could be the reason he was walking while his friend was not.

Just as many motorists may not be happy about a penalty in the safety belt law, I feel certain there also are many who would be extremely happy if it were the key factor in their decisions to buckle up...and that the buckling up enabled them to walk away from a vehicle crash.

The few seconds it takes to buckle up and be sure that your passengers are using their safety devices could prevent years of suffering from serious injuries or the loss of a loved one in a motor vehicle crash.

If could be among the most important few seconds of your life...the difference between being carried away or walking away.

Hurry, hurry— Santa's on the way

Shoppers fill the aisles as the Christmas countdown winds to a close late last week. Left, Margie Schmitt of Waveland and children Patrick, 8, and Megan, 4, stop to choose a toy. In the background is Brenda Little and daughter, Whitney.

Bro. Paul Montero elected Provincial

The Brothers of the Sacred Heart elected Brother Paul Montero to a three-year term as provincial of the New Orleans Province effective August 15, 1994, to replace Brother Bernard Couvillion at the conclusion of his six-year term.

After assuming office as provincial, Brother Paul's first responsibility will be to represent the New Orleans Province in Rome at the congregation's 32nd General Chapter, an international assembly of Brother-delegates from 28 countries. The General Chapter begins August 17, 1994.

Brother Paul has served in a variety of roles of Catholic school leadership during his 35 years as a Brother.

After serving as teacher, guidance counselor and assistant principal at St. Aloysius in New Orleans, he was principal for two different tenures each at E.D. White High School in Thibodaux, Louisiana and at St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis.

In 1991, he assumed the full-time role as president of St. Stanislaus, where he has led a successful expansion and building campaign and is currently celebrating the school's 140th anniversary.

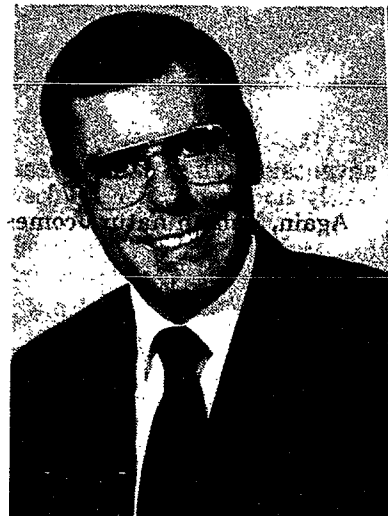

Besides his educational roles, the New Orleans province called upon him to serve as director of novices from 1977 to 1980 and as vocation director from 1980 to 1982.

For the last six years he has been a member of the provincial council, the leadership team of the New Orleans province elected by the ninety-two member province.

Brother Paul is the son of Anite Montero of Donaldsonville, Louisiana, and the late Odell P. Montero.

He took first vows in 1958 before attending Spring Hill College in Mobile, where he earned a B.S. degree in Spanish and Social Studies. From the University of Alabama he obtained an M.A. in guidance and counseling. He has done ongoing graduate work at Loyola University, New Orleans; Nicholls State University, Thibodaux, La.; and Dominican College, New Orleans.

SMPDD awarded job creation grant

The U.S. Department of Commerce has awarded Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District Inc. of Gulfport $1.5 million to create a Revolving Loan Fund for Harrison, Hancock and Pearl River counties.

The economic development grant was designed to make small loans available to businesses that seek to create locally based jobs.

The grant is the result of the Department of Commerce's continued efforts to assist South Mississippi communities most affected by the closure of the Mississippi Army Ammo Plant located in Hancock County.

Santa makes rounds

Clockwise from right, at the Coast Episcopal Christmas Family Tea, students were able to make some last minute requests of Santa. Coast Episcopal sixth grader Katie Jacobson and eighth grader Sally Dane agree, "You're never too old to sit on Santa's lap."

Charlie Deaton, Coast Episcopal music teacher, plays guitar as students sing Christmas carols for friends and family at the Christmas tea.
